

MiSSiONS / Rail Adventure Player Manual

For teams playing on their phones

Version 2.2.28 · 2026-06-18

Welcome, Player

This manual is for you, the player — the person holding the phone during the game. You don't need an account, you don't install anything: the Gamemaster (GM) hands you a QR code or a short URL, you open it, pick a team name, and you're in.

There are two game types and the manual covers both:

- Part 1, MiSSiONS games. A classic photo/video scavenger hunt at a single location. Your team works through a list of missions the GM curated; you upload media for each, the GM accepts or rejects, you collect points.
- Part 2, Rail Adventure games. A mode with two kinds of task: Missions (do them anywhere, no walking) and Checkpoints (places on the map you walk to). You alternate between them and the Gamemaster approves each one before you move on. Plus optional "specials" you can do any time and a PvP freeze mechanic.

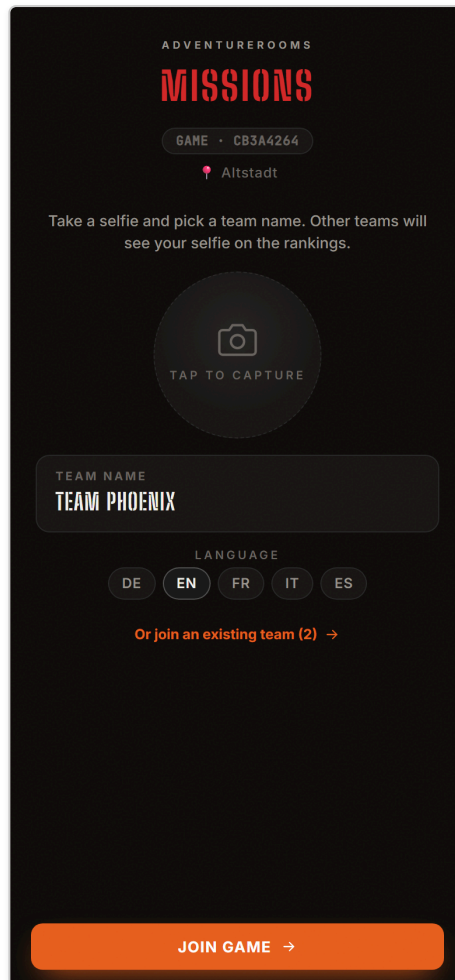

You won't always know in advance which type you're playing — both start the same way, with a QR code from the GM. Just follow the on-screen flow and the right manual section will be obvious.

Screenshots show a demo game. Your real games will look the same with your own team name and the missions the GM picked.

PART 1

Playing MiSSiONS games

Joining the game

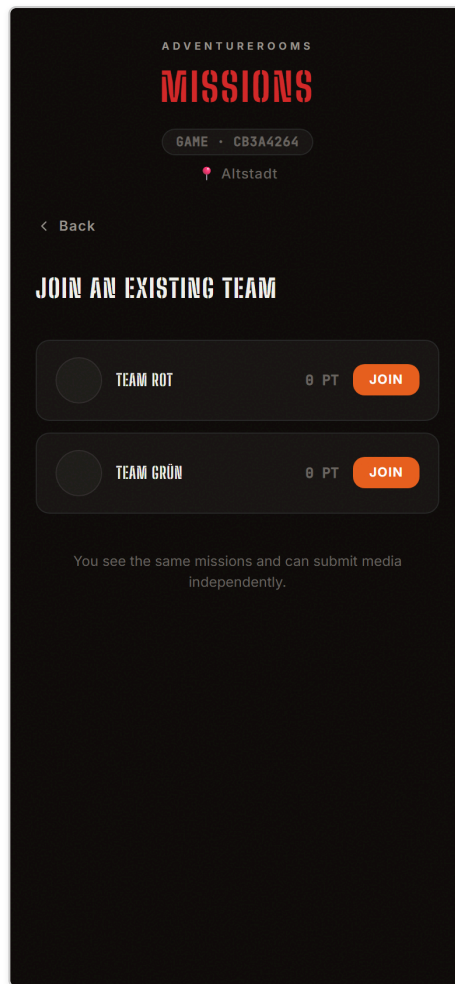

Join screen: take a selfie, enter the team name, pick a language.

After scanning the QR code (or opening the URL the GM gave you), this is the very first screen. From top to bottom:

- The big stenciled MISSIONS wordmark and the GAME · ... short code so you can confirm with the GM you joined the right game.
- A round Tap to capture target — tap it to take a team selfie with the front camera. The selfie shows up next to your team name on the live rankings, so put a face to your team. (You can skip this and add it later, but most teams take it now.)
- Team name — type your team name in the field. Pick something recognizable; the GM and other teams see this exact string.
- Language — DE / EN / FR / IT / ES. Pick yours; you can change it later from inside the game. The GM may have restricted the list to the languages the missions are translated into.

Tap Join game → at the bottom and you're in.

Joining a team that already exists

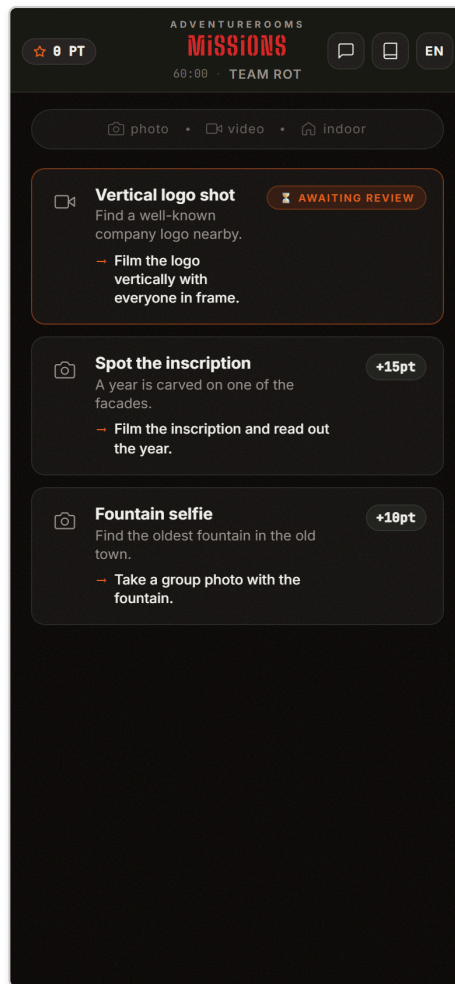

Join an existing team: list of running teams with their current score.

If your group is more than two or three people, you'll often want two phones on the same team — one person carries the camera phone, another handles chat and reviewing. Or someone joined first on their own, then realized you want to play together.

For these cases, tap Or join an existing team on the join screen. This panel lists every team already in the game with their current score. Tap Join next to your team and your phone hooks into that team's session — same missions, same chat, same score. Each phone can still submit independently.

This link only appears once at least one team has already joined the game; before that you only see the create-new flow.

The player home

MiSSIONS player home: mission cards with the filter strip and status pills.

Once you've joined, this is your home base. The top bar shows:

- Score (top-left) — your team's current point total.
- MiSSIONS wordmark in the middle with the game timer right below it, plus your team name in small grey letters.
- Chat / Rules / Language icons on the right. The chat icon gets an orange dot when the GM has written to you.

Below the bar:

- Filter strip — Photo / Video / Indoor toggles. Hide categories you don't want to see right now.
- Mission cards — one per mission. Each card shows the mission name, a short description, the task, the points on offer, and a status pill (Open / Awaiting review / Done / Rejected).

Tap any card to open its detail sheet.

Submitting a mission

Mission detail sheet: task, points and the capture / upload buttons.

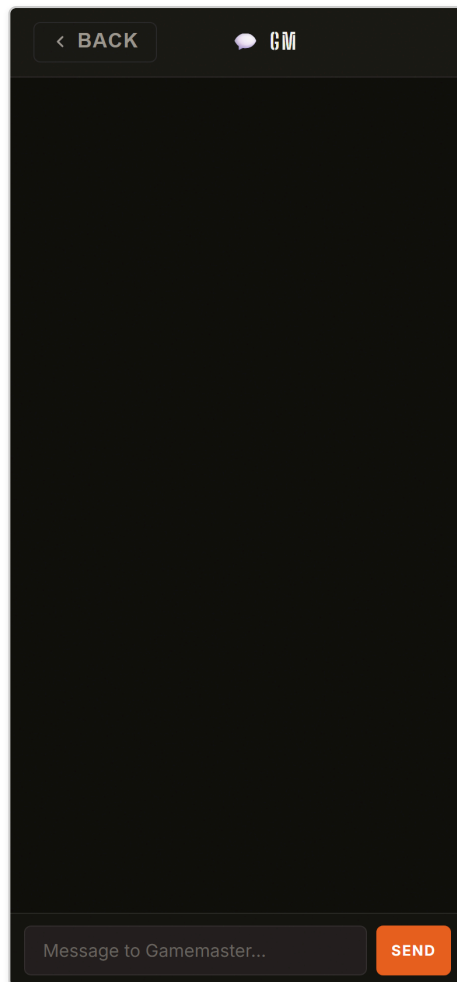

Tapping a card slides up a sheet with everything you need:

- Mission name and points at the top.
- Description — flavour text, what this mission is about.
- Task — what the GM literally wants you to do. Read this carefully; the GM rejects uploads that miss the task.
- Take photo / Take video — opens the camera in the right mode for this mission.
- Upload from gallery — pick a photo or video you already took. Useful if the action moment passed before you opened the app.

Once you submit, the card flips to Awaiting review and the GM sees it on their dashboard. They either tap Accept (and you get the points) or Reject with a reason — in which case the mission becomes available again and you can retry.

Close the sheet by tapping the × in the top-right or the dark backdrop.

Chat with the Gamemaster

Chat tab: 1-to-1 conversation with the Gamemaster.

Tap the chat icon (top-right of the home view) to switch to the chat panel. It's a one-on-one thread between your team and the GM — other teams cannot see it.

Use it for:

- Asking the GM to clarify a task you don't understand.
- Reporting that a mission location is closed/blocked.
- Reading rejection reasons after the GM rejects an upload (these arrive here as well as on the mission card).
- Reading broadcasts the GM sent to everyone — these have a small "Broadcast" tag so you know they weren't aimed only at you.

When the GM writes to you (a direct message or a broadcast), your phone plays a short notification tone and the chat icon shows an orange dot — so you won't miss a message while you're looking at the map. Type, tap Send, and you're done. Tap Back in the topbar to get back to your missions.

PART 2

Playing Rail Adventure games

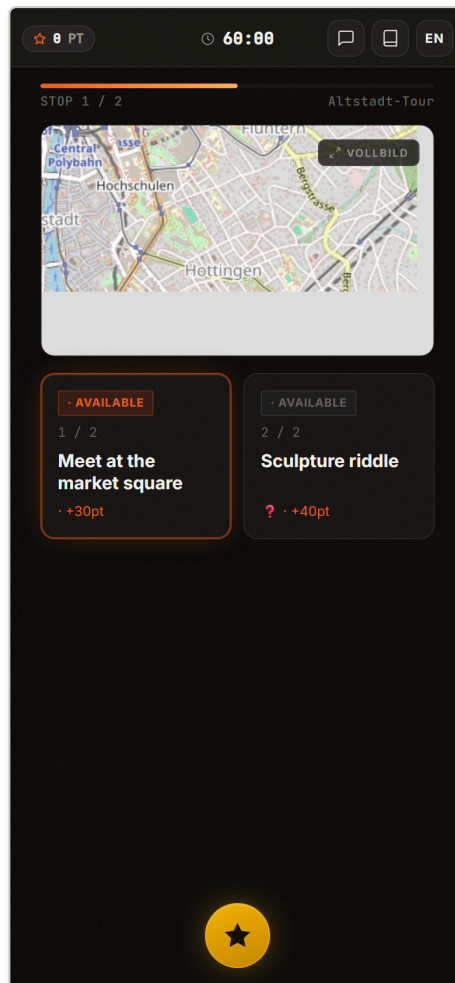

Rail Adventure has two kinds of task:

- ⚡ Missions — do them anywhere, no walking required. These are what you see first.
- 📍 Checkpoints — spots on the map. Your team physically walks there; the task only unlocks once you've arrived.

You alternate between the two: a Mission, then a Checkpoint, then a Mission, and so on. And each task has to be accepted by the Gamemaster before you can do the next one — after you submit, you can read what's coming but you can't complete it until the GM gives you the green light.

The screens look similar to MiSSiONS but include a map and the two-row task layout.

The Rail Adventure home

CityRush player home: mini-map, progress bar and mission tiles in route order.

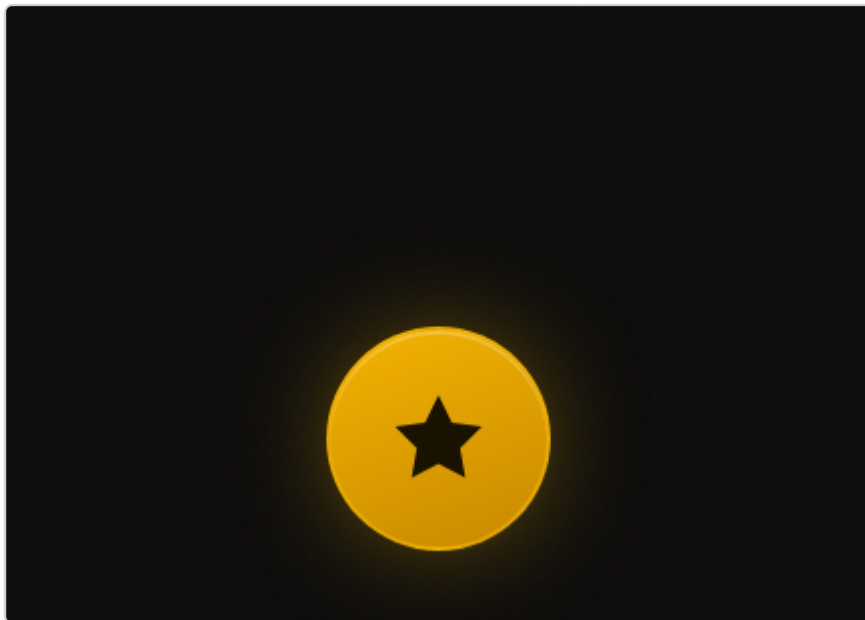

The Rail Adventure player home shows your tasks in two rows:

- Topbar — score on the left, game timer in the middle, chat / rules / language on the right. Same idea as MiSSiONS.

- Mini-map — your team's position (the orange dot) plus the Checkpoint markers. Tap the map to expand it fullscreen.
- ⚡ Missions row — the no-GPS tasks. Tap one and do it on the spot.
- 📍 Checkpoints row — the GPS tasks. Whichever row isn't your turn is dimmed with a little 🔒 note ("finish a checkpoint / mission first"); you can still tap a tile to read it, you just can't submit yet.
- Gold star button at the bottom — special-mission shortcut, covered below.

Tap a tile to open the same mission detail sheet you saw in MiSSIONS. The submission flow (take photo / video / upload from gallery) is identical. After you submit, the tile shows Awaiting review and the rest stays locked until the GM accepts it — that's the alternation working as designed, not a bug.

The special-mission button

Gold star at the bottom — shortcut to the lone special mission.

This gold round star sits permanently at the bottom-center of the screen as long as there's exactly one special mission left. Specials are bonus missions playable any time, anywhere — no GPS requirement, often a quick group task (a dance, a chant, a funny pose). Tap the star to open the special directly.

If your route has two or more specials, they instead surface as gold-glowing tiles at the top of the tile grid and the round button disappears. If there are zero, the button is hidden.

Draw missions

Some tasks ask you to draw something. Open the mission and tap 🎨 Draw to get a fullscreen drawing pad. The header has:

- Mission — shows the task (what to draw).
- Options — pick a pencil, brush or eraser; change the size and colour; undo your last stroke; or clear the canvas.
- Submit — sends the drawing. If the Gamemaster set the mission to need approval it goes to them to accept; otherwise you get the points straight away.
- Back — leaves without submitting.

If the mission is collaborative, whoever starts it sees a QR code (also under the Invite button).

Teammates scan it to join the same canvas and draw together in real time — everyone sees each stroke as it happens. Only the person who started has the Submit and Back buttons. You can turn your phone sideways for more room; the canvas re-fits and your drawing is kept.

The fullscreen map

Fullscreen map: tap the mini-map; every stop appears as a marker.

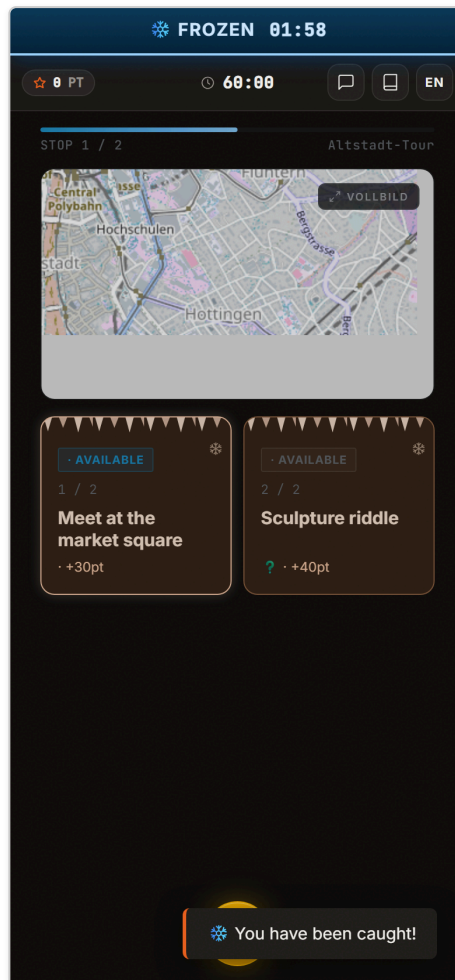

Tap the mini-map at the top of the home view to expand it to the full screen. You see:

- Every mission stop as a marker, in route order.
- Your team's position as a moving dot (only if you granted location permission).

- The gold star button at the bottom-center stays visible so you can launch a special from inside the map too.
- A JUMP TO ME chip top-right that recenters the map on your current position.
- A BACK / ZURÜCK chip top-left to return to the mission view.

The fullscreen map is for orientation. To submit, go back to the mission view and tap a tile.

Getting frozen

Frozen: blue banner at the top, submissions locked until the timer expires.

If a rival team caught you on camera and the GM accepted their freeze, you'll see a big blue FROZEN banner at the top with a countdown, the mission view tints cold-blue, and an "You have been caught!" toast appears at the bottom.

While frozen:

- You cannot submit missions (Take photo / Upload buttons are locked behind a frost overlay).
- The game timer keeps running — freezes are real time, you don't get back the minutes you lost.
- You can still browse missions, read the chat, and look at the map.

When the freeze timer ends, the banner disappears, the tint clears, and the submission buttons unlock automatically. The GM can also thaw you early if the situation warrants it.

To avoid being frozen: don't pose for photos with rival teams in sight, and switch routes if you spot one tailing you. (Yes, Rail Adventure is partly a stealth game.)

End-of-game

When the GM ends the game or the timer runs out:

- A modal pops up with the GM's end-of-game message and your final score.
- The mission view goes read-only — submissions are no longer accepted.
- Your final selfie and the team's submitted photos may end up in a slideshow the GM renders for the prize ceremony.

You can keep the page open to look at the rankings, but the "working" part of the game is over.

Tips that win games

- Read the task, not just the title. The card title is short; the task line right above the submit buttons is the actual rubric the GM rejects against.
- Submit clear photos. A blurry shot or one without the required subject in frame is the #1 reason for rejections. Frame the subject, hold the phone steady, tap.
- Use chat early. If a mission is impossible because the location is closed or the prop is missing, message the GM right away instead of grinding on it. They can swap or remove it.
- Watch your battery. GPS in Rail Adventure + camera in both modes drain the battery fast. Carry a power bank.
- In Rail Adventure, do specials between stops, not at stops. Stops unlock when you arrive; doing a special exactly there wastes the geofence dwell time.

Common questions

The Take photo button is greyed out. Either you're frozen (see the FROZEN banner) or the mission was already accepted. If neither, ask the GM in chat.

My score didn't update after I submitted. Submission ≠ accept. The score only ticks up after the GM accepts. You'll see the mission flip from "Awaiting review" to "Done".

I joined the wrong game. Tell the GM; you can scan the right QR code from scratch. The wrong game's session forgets you as soon as the GM ends it (or after 24 hours of inactivity).

My team's selfie is wrong. On the join screen the selfie is the team selfie. If you want to re-take it, the GM has to delete the team and you re-join — or use the "Or join an existing team" link with a fresh device, then overwrite the selfie at upload time (your selfie capture overwrites the team's existing one).

I'm on iOS and the camera shows a black screen. iOS Safari requires you to grant camera permission in Settings → Safari → Camera (set to "Ask" or "Allow"). After granting, refresh the page.

A Checkpoint stays locked even though I'm at the spot. First check it's actually your turn — if you just finished a Checkpoint, the next thing has to be a Mission (the Checkpoints row will be dimmed). Also, if you submitted something, you have to wait for the GM to accept it before anything else unlocks. If it genuinely is your turn and nothing's pending, your GPS accuracy might be poor: step into the open sky and wait 5–10 seconds, or ask the GM.

There's no "skip" button. Tasks aren't skippable unless the Gamemaster turned that on for that specific mission. If you truly can't do one, message the GM in chat.

Why can I open the next task but not submit it? That's the alternation rule. You can always read ahead, but you can only submit the task whose turn it is — and only once the GM has accepted your previous one.
